LANDING PAGE

The landing page represents the organization's brand image. A good landing page can effectively guide users to take further action and give them a better user experience, thus increasing consumer engagement and conversion rates. In my landing page design, I added the slogan of the brand's promotional activities to the landing page and using Call-To-Action to guide consumers to shopping.

GOOGLE SEARCH TEXT AD CAMPAIGN

Google is the world's largest search engine, meaning placing search text ads on Google can reap much exposure. Secondly, Google Ads provides ad analytics tools that can provide important indicators of click-through rates, conversion rates, etc., which can help us better adjust the content of our ads.

GOOGLE SEARCH TEXT AD CAMPAIGN

Keyword targeting through Google's paid search engine marketing can increase click-through rates by getting ads in front of potential consumers interested in shoes and Valentine's Day.

Secondly, potential users can quickly discover the brand's advertising campaign through the text content in the ads. By using a tagline such as "50% off your second item", you can guide the user to the following action.

The "Limit offer" in the advertisement can increase the user's sense of urgency, encourage the consumer to complete the consumption in a short period and increase the possibility of impulse consumption.

EMAIL AD CAMPAIGN

The second type of advertisement marketing is email ad campaigns. I chose them because they do not require a large investment and have a higher Return on Investment (ROI). They are also more focused and can reach my target audience directly through emails.

EMAIL AD CAMPAIGN

In the promotional email, I chose to amplify and highlight the promotional discounts in red and chose a Valentine's Day-appropriate shoe image for the body of the email. The tagline "Limit Offer" and the phrase "Shop Now!" promote and guide consumer action, stimulating purchases.

A limited-time campaign can also create a sense of urgency for the consumer, prompting them to purchase before the campaign ends. Promotional mailings can drive sales, increase brand exposure and build stronger customer relationships while keeping costs low.
